

OUR SERVICES

Techweavers recognized that many companies, whether they were well-established or brand new, have had some common concerns when considering corporate websites.

The first concern was the initial, high cost of having a website designed and the other costs associated with the Internet experience. The second concern was the "how to" of publishing the newly created website on the web and the ongoing technical support necessary to keep everything functioning properly for the company.

Techweavers found an opportunity to remove the high costs associated with designing websites by providing all of the facets of website development as a "monthly" service. This is, in essence, a shared risk with our clients.

By offering this service at a monthly rate, it enables companies to acquire or develop a website essential to growing their businesses in a way that they would not be able to do with other website providers. They do not have to take the risk alone. Our approach has taken the fears and reservations out of the decision to have a website.

Our clients experience all of the benefits a website brings to their businesses without the risks and liabilities associated with having to manage it themselves, or the excessive costs related to developing and maintaining a website.

No website development costs
No website update charges ever!

With each website we include the following:

- Initial development of the website (graphics and content)
- Hosting of the site on enterprise class servers
